

Lubrication Marketer Community Service Activity

In addition to partnering with Chevron Lubricants to deliver our proven-performance products, Chevron's Lubrication Marketers give back to their local communities through a number of different projects, outreach programs and offerings of their time and energy.

We would like to hear about your company's recent community service activity and share your experience with Chevron colleagues and other Marketer partners. Please provide an example of the interaction you shared with your local community by printing this form, filling it out and returning it via e-mail to Margrethe Choroser at crmr@chevron.com. Please include photos of you and/or your co-workers on location during your time of service, if available.

As organizations are grateful for all types of community service, so is Chevron to its Marketers for any and all ways you give back to your communities. For the purposes of communicating, however, please do not send examples of monetary contributions or personal community service done outside of work. We are looking specifically for company-sponsored efforts that focus on the giving of time and human energy.
